California Building Industry Association Announces Hiring Joaquin Pons as Vice President of Political Affairs and Communications

SACRAMENTO, Calif. – September 28, 2018 - Dan Dunmoyer, President and CEO of the California Building Industry Association (CBIA), announced today that Joaquin Pons has been hired as the organization’s Vice President of Political Affairs and Communications.

“Joaquin’s wealth of expertise will make him a tremendous asset to CBIA’s membership,” said Mr. Dunmoyer. “The CBIA Board and I are thrilled that he will be adding his unique skill set and political acumen to the organization’s overall goal of increasing homeownership in California.”

As the newest member of the CBIA’s Government Affairs team Joaquin Pons brings over a decade of policy and political experience in a variety of capacities. In his new role, Joaquin will lead the organization’s political and external communications programs.

Joaquin is currently the Chair of the New Democratic Policy Coalition – an entity created to inform and educate the public about the important state public policy issues being pursued by the New Democrats and other legislators through the press, social media, and direct voter contact. Joaquin is also a board member of the labor and business issues advocacy committee Building and Protecting California’s Future.

Prior to joining CBIA, Joaquin served as the Political Director for the California Correctional Peace Officers Association (CCPOA). Over the past six years, Joaquin’s duties as political director included directing all aspects of CCPOA’s political program, leading candidate recommendations and endorsement processes, as well as the independent expenditure and ballot measure campaigns.
